In Appreciation of Mr. C. H. Jones

1916 — 1975

Thirty-seven years ago Mr. Jones began working in the field of education. In 1970, based on his impressive qualifications and accomplishments, Mr. Jones was retained by the Wentzville R IV School District as Superintendent. Until his untimely death, Mr. Jones worked hard for the students of the district to insure for the present and the future a quality education for all.

Because of his efforts on behalf of the students of Wentzville, this 1975 edition of the Pow Wow is gratefully dedicated to Mr. C.H. Jones.

In Memoriam

Hazel Willerding,
for her years of service to the school and community

the pants worn round the world

fad, fashion, phenomenon — jeans have seized us all by the seat

The world is in the grip of a blue-jeans frenzy. Once the no-nonsense work pants of farmers, lumberjacks, and miners--and few others--jeans now strut, stride, stroll and slouch everywhere, on the job and off. They are at home in palaces (Princess Anne of England wore them when she had her hair done on her wedding day) and at parties (author Norman Mailer and actor Marlon Brando have appeared in them at black-tie affairs). They are smuggled into Eastern Europe (an $8 pair of basic jeans currently fetches $90 on the Russian black market). School campuses from Omaha to Oska are so awash in a sea of unisex jeans that one might suspect they are compulsory wear.

The globe's most popular pants are today manufactured on every continent except Antarctica, and world-wide production is fast heading toward the billion-pair-a-year mark. Last year, American textile mills, working three shifts a day, six days a week, turned our more than 400 million square yards of denim, primarily for jeans. Although this was enough fabric to encircle the earth nine times at the equator, it fell 100 million yards short of demand.

Why the "jeaning" of the world? "A fashion is easier to follow if it is both chic and cheap," explains one manufacturer. And jeans are undeniably fashionable and affordable, as well as sturdy and comfortable. You can dress down in $2 recycled jeans from Goodwill--or dress up in a $200 sky-blue jeans suit.

Perhaps more important, jeans are an idea, a concept, a sit-on-the floor attitude. "Jeans represent a casual life-style that is being adopted by a growing part of the world," says Walter A. Haas, Jr., chairman of Levi Strauss & Co., the world's largest manufacturer of jeans. And it's no coincidence that both the life-style and the garment itself sprang out of the free-swinging, colorful days of California's Gold Rush.

In 1850, Levi Strauss, a 20-year-old Bavarian immigrant, arrived by sailing ship in San Francisco to seek his fortune in the gold fields. He brought with him a stock of dry goods including some heavy brown canvas he planned to sell to miners for tents and wagon covers. Tents, he soon found, were not in demand, but few prospectors had work clothes study enough to stand up to the rough life of the diggings. The enterprising young man had a tailor make pants out of his rugged canvas. Word spread that "those pants of Levi's" (hence Levi's) were the strongest around, and they sold quickly.

Convinced that he had found a good thing, thing, Levi opened a work-clothes shop in San Francisco (not far from the company's current headquarters in the 29-story Levi Strauss Building). When canvas ran out, he switched to a tough cotton fabric originally loomed in Nimes, France, called serge de Nimes, or simply denim. (Genoese sailors had long worn pants of similar fabric, known as genes, and later jeans.) Tall tales of denim's indestructibility proliferated. In one story, when the coupling between two railroad cars broke, a trainman hitched them together with a pair of Levi's and made it ten miles to the next station.

The truth was perhaps less dramatic, but the robust work clothes made by Levi Strauss, his relatives and competitiors did in fact uniform the men who laid the railroad tracks, rounded up the cattle, cut the forests, farmed the plains and built the cities of this fast-growing nation.

By the 1950's, jeans had become the staple play-garb of children, and teenagers began battling parents and high-school administrators for the right to wear jeans to classes. In the course of this struggle, jeans themselves became a symbol of defiance against authority or oppression, whether parental or political, real or imagined. Their secret message identified youthful wearers one to another. "I am one of you--against the others." In the early 1960's, the civil-rights marchers, screaming youngsters at Beatles concerts, anti-war activists, college protesters and hippies--all seized upon blue jeans as their very own.

But a funny thing happend on the way to the barricades. Fashion discovered blue jeans. Suddenly, stores blossomed with jeans, not only for blue-collar workers and rebellious youth but for family members of all ages and all income levels. No longer were there just standard jeans--tight around the hips, with multiple pockets and double-stitched seams--but all manner of variations: flared legs, bell bottoms, cuffs, wide belt loops, tricky pockets, fancy stitching, lighter-weight fabrics, rainbow colors. Overnight, the nation joyfully donned jeans and was off--cycling, gardening, boating, bowling, horseback riding, back-yard barbecueing.

Although outraged to find themselves wearing the same gear as their parents, young hotheads refused to abandon the jeans that had become like a second skin. Instead, they wore theirs more ferociously than ever. Holes? Patch or embroider them. Rips? Sew a piece of braid on top. Seat gone? Salvage the part from another worn pair. Legs torn? Amputate them and flaunt the frayed edges. Faded? Groovy. The tattered look of raveled, beat-up jeans became another way of nosethumbing at the world of materialism and status.

But, once again, fashion co-opted its opposition. Machine-embroidered patches were manufactured to be sewn over non-existent holes. To fade their new jeans, youngsters bleached them; if the bleach ate a hole in the fabric so much the better. Rag peddlers sold anything made of denim at a premium to boutiques and department stores, where secondhand jeans outsold new ones, and at higher prices.

The denim phenomenon quickly leaped the oceans to change the world's way of dress. Governments might engage in anti-American politics, but whole populations pulled on pro-American pants. Levi Strauss moved into the 1960's, first exporting then manufacturing abroad. With offices in 35 countries and plants in 12, the company's international division now accounts for more than one quarter of Levi's total $750 million in yearly sales. Bleu Bell, Inc., the second-largest U.S. jeans manufacturer, markets its Wranglers in 85 countries and produces in 17.

In Holland, the jeans capital of Europe, 40 percent of the population is reported to wear them daily. In Italy, a recent billboard ad showed the Creator, as depicted by Michelangelo in the Sistine Chapel ceiling, handing Adam a pair of Levi's. In Austrailia, 80 percent of all pants sold are jeans or jeans-type. But leave it to the French to hook up jeans with haute couture. One high-style designer devoted part of a collection to variations on the jeans theme, and the beautful people can hardly wait to pay $100 for fur-trimmed couturier pants copied from an $8 mail-order model.

Old or new, glorified or plain, jeans are likely to be around for a long time to come. Already they have succeeded where statesmanship has failed: although still unable to speak the same language, the inhabitants of this embattled planet have at least agreed to wear the same pants.

to the class of 1975

Dear Seniors:

I wish to express to all of you my appreciation for your cooperation and deep sense of school spirit shown throughout your final year at Wentzville High School. Many of you have contributed not only to the betterment of your school, but also to your community. I feel you have helped to set the high standards necessary for our youth to develop and become strong citizens within our society upon the completion of their secondary education.

Many of you will continue on in institutions of higher learning and others will strive to find success within the world of business or industry. I sincerely wish all of you much success in whatever course you may choose.

Thanks again for helping to make 1974-75 one of the most, if not the most, successful year in the history of Wentzville High School.

Respectfully,

Louis F. Newbold

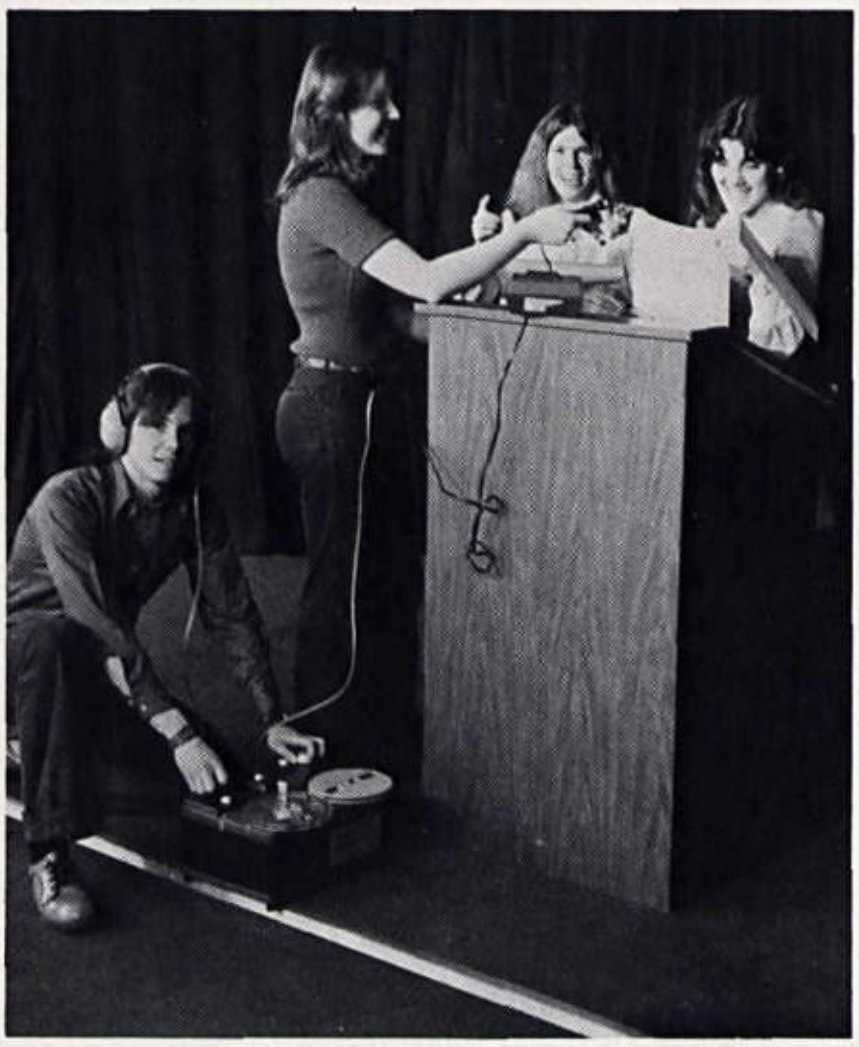
chess club and team

The Wentzville Chess Club was an organization made up of junior and senior high students. A team of five members (subject to change during the year) was chosen from the club to compete in two tournaments.

The team traveled to the Daniel Boone Chess Conference and Tom Buhr, a sophomore team member, walked away with the first place trophy. Later the team competed in the conference tourney and took second place. Individual honors were gained by Tom Buhr, first; Rick Humphreys, second; and Casey O'Dell, fourth.

Although chess is not considered to be in the regular roster of athletic events, the team members do receive school letters. Chess requires a lot of concentration and Wentzville High was proud to claim three trophies for their 1974-75 team efforts.

Officers for the club were Ron McGill and John Mack, and the sponsors were Mr. Rowbottom, Mr. Tuffli, and Mr. Salaman.



radio broadcast team

The speech classes at Wentzville expanded this year. Four senior students, under the supervision of Mr. McAdam, had the opportunity to broadcast a program on KWRE radio station. The programs were taped and sent to the station to be broadcasted at 5 p.m. on Tuesday evenings.

Mike Neal, Jeff Riordan, Pam Allen, and Debbie Turner were the weekly student broadcasters, but several other students also had a chance to tape speeches for the program.

This new opportunity gave the students a chance to voice their opinions and to broaden their abilities in public speaking. It proved to be quite an exciting and educational experience.

The Future Nurses of America familiarized several Wentzville girls with available nursing careers and their duties. The group assisted in several Red Cross Blood Bank drives, visited hospitals, hosted guest speakers, and reviewed some fundamentals of nursing.

Mrs. Brook, the school nurse, supervised the girls. Irene Cohagen held the President's office with Diane Walls next in line. Dorothy Guckes headed the treasury and Theresa Davidson compiled the minutes of the meetings.

Many times a student council talks a lot but never accomplishes anything. Wentzville's 1974-75 Sr. High School Council proved to be just the opposite. Officers were chosen at the beginning of the school year. Debbie Turner was voted President; Karen Kuhn, Vice-president; Donna Wright, Secretary; Jan Bendsen, Treasurer; and Alice Toth, Assistant Secretary. Things started popping soon after the election when the council organized the Homecoming Parade. Their other numerous activities were the student Government Day, where student council members were acting as teachers and administrators; Student Exchange Day with Fort Zumwalt; the MS and MD Drives; and the flea market for the Hazel Willerding Memorial Scholarship.

national honor society

The National Honor Society was involved in school and community benefits throughout the year. Their activities included a bake sale in the fall and assisting in the senior class blood bank drive. Guest speakers were invited during the year and the annual induction banquet was held in the spring.

The organization was sponsored by Mrs. Marjorie Robinson with student officers Ruth Rieken, President; Christine Peters, Vice-President; Janice Bett, Secretary; and Debbie Walker, Treasurer.

Halloween in February??? February 8 may have seemed like October 31 when the French Club held its Mardi Gras. All participants used their imagination and created their own costumes (would you believe a box or a wizard?) for the event. Unfortunately the party ended early because of snow and the costume judging event was cancelled. The club also held a Christmas skating party and a picnic in the spring. Educational trips spotlighted the year. The group, sponsored by Ms. Sorrell, toured museums and art exhibits such as the one at Webster College. The officers chosen to head the club were Jodi Walker, President; Pam Allen, Vice-President; and Craig Kilby, Treasurer.

During the 1974-75 school year the Art Club's goal was to encourage art interest and to provide extra curricular art activities. The club was sponsored by Ms. Althoff and Ms. Hermanson. Their activities included a car wash, candy apple sales, and a club sponsored showing of the movies "Bullet" and "Rock Around The Clock" for the Jr.-Sr. High School students.

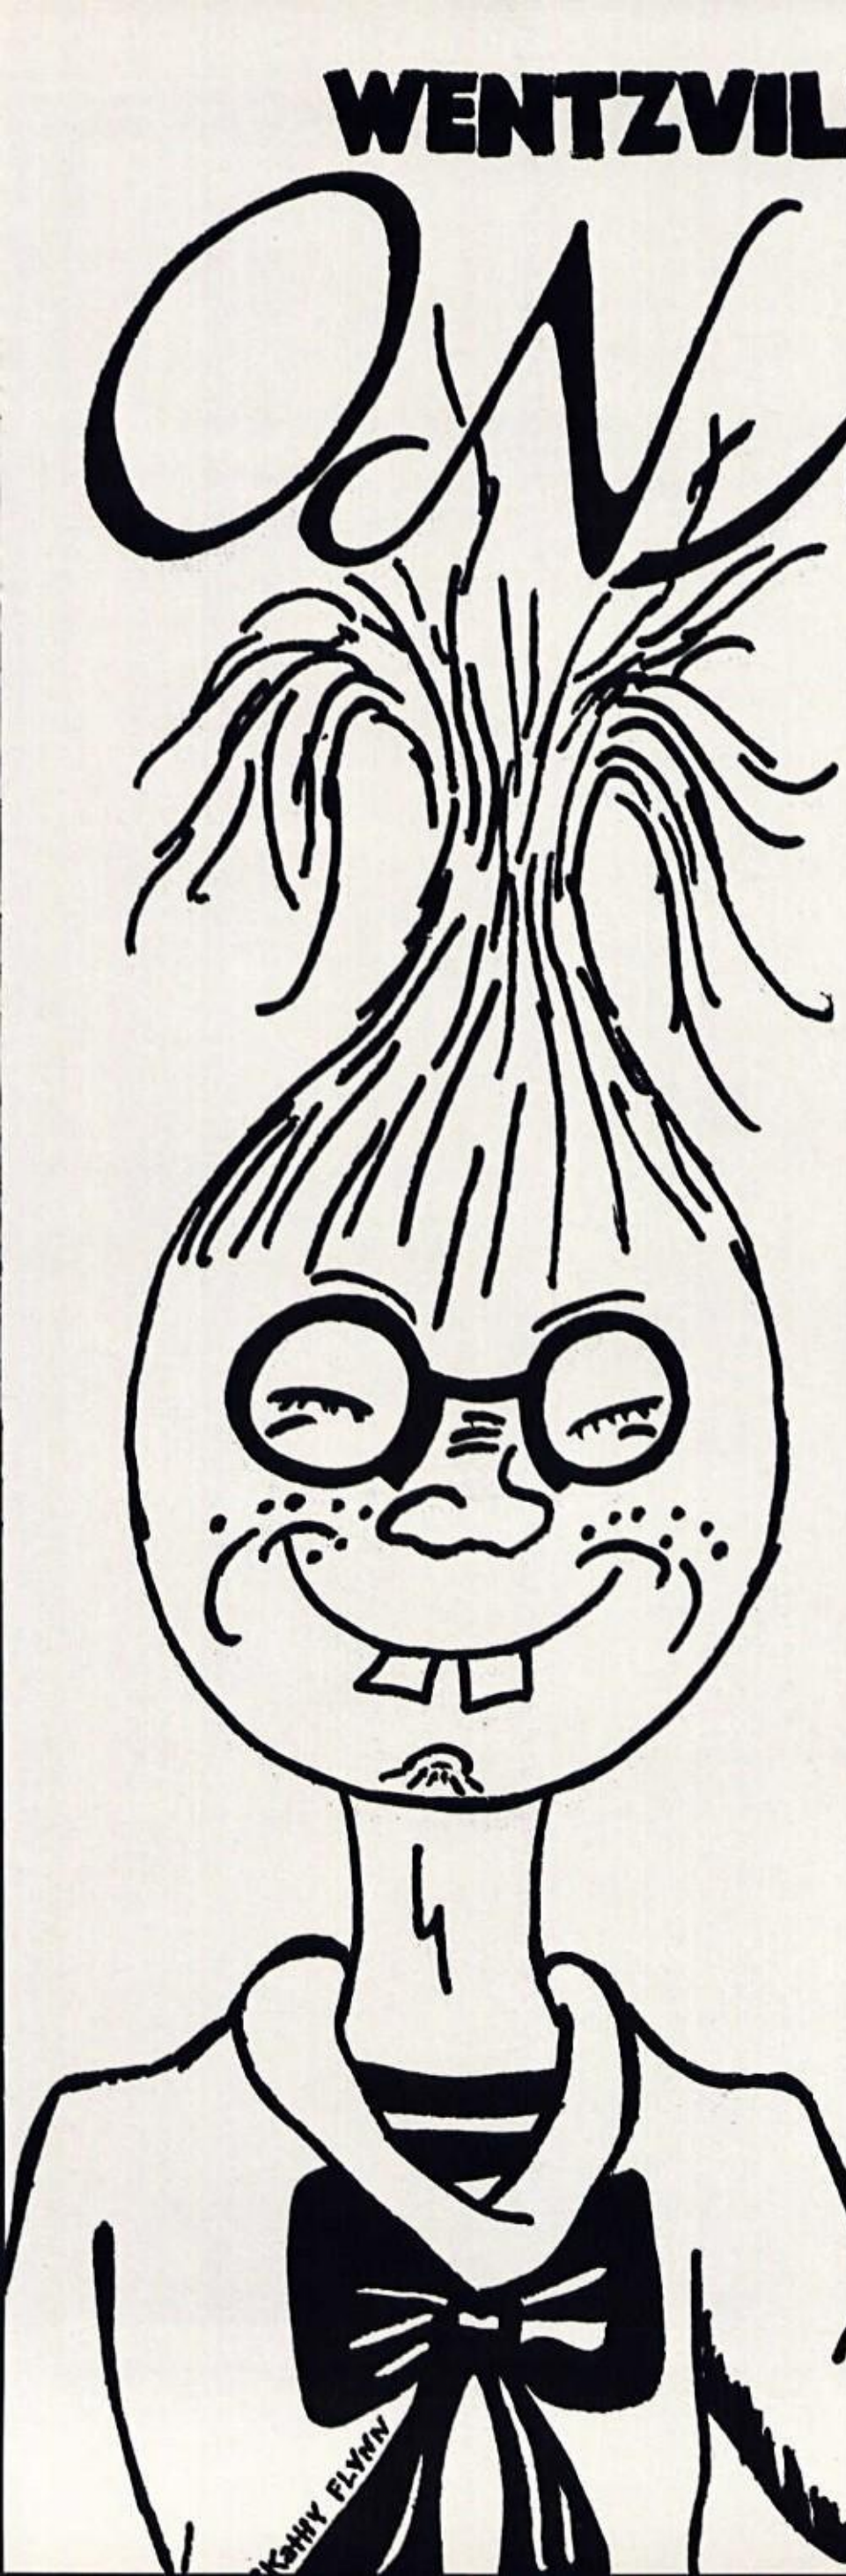
WENTZVILLE HIGH

ONION



Once again Wentzville High School was able to publish a school newspaper. The name of the periodical, the WENTZVILLE ONION, was a take-off on the name of the local newspaper, the WENTZVILLE UNION.

The bi-weekly paper featured articles about sports, dances, rock groups, interesting students, and many other subjects of interest to the students. Some of the articles were also published in a special section of the WENTZVILLE UNION.

The staff, supervised by Mr. Weinz, was composed of twelve area writers, two photographers, and two editors, Karen Kuhn and Barb Duren. Besides writing articles, Kathy Flynn was also the papers's cover artist.

Spirit Club proved successful in its activities throughout the year. Although its main purpose was to arouse spirit at sports events, it sponsored Spirit Week, a Winter Sports Dance, Homecoming Dance, sold spirit buttons and ribbons, and raised money by selling stationery.

Leesa Medley presided over the club with Terri Miller as Vice-President and Mary Carty as Secretary. Mrs. Kelley sponsored the club and guided the girls in many of their activities.

lettermen's club
(jocks and jockettes)

The Lettermen's Club is composed of high school male and female athletes who have attained a school letter for their achievements in sports. Wentzville's club was headed by Coach Woodring. The club sponsored the athletic awards banquet on May 20. Members were as follows: Chris Kelley, Dale Wilcoxen, Ed Rutherford, Todd Pinkston, Ed Harris, Mike Rackley, Mike Panke, Marty Moerschell, Mark Collins, Frank Martell, Tom Breen, Milton Doyle, Greg Elzie, Bill Schuman, Pat Anderson, John Peters, David Wallace, Dale Terrell, Chuck Hogan, Andy Maisak, Reggie Sitze, Robbie Sitze, Jeff Slaughter, Tom Burns, Jim Heeter, Scott Ramsey, Cathy Weber, Bev Whitchurch, Terri Miller, Julie Burns, Raenell Mackey, Barb Bryson, Sherri Simms, Mitch Schnider, John Humphreys, Chris Lissner, Garry Sitze, Jim Sappington, Jerry Tonioli, Greg Ebling, Don Hutson, Randy Sitze, Darlene Mayers, Susan Schramm, and Mike Coryell.

The Girl's Athletic Association sponsored the girl's athletic activities throughout the year. Their main activity was powder puff football. Officers of the organization were President, Terri Miller; Vice-President, Bev Whitchurch; Treasurer, Joya Hohn; and Sponsor, Mrs. Breen.

Members were as follows: T. Miller, M. Voss, T. Schulte, J. Hohn, T. Tonioli, T. Thornberry, C. Weber, C. Flaugher, J. Burkhead, B. Whitchurch, L. Garrett, J. Burns, S. Jenkins, K. Kitchen, C. deca

"I believe in the democratic philosophies of private enterprise and competition, and in the freedoms of this nation." The DECA Creed

The purposes of the Distributive Education Club are to further marketing education and competitive attitudes in our free-enterprise system. During the school year DECA students distribute their time between required classroom courses and a part-time job in an effort to learn as much about the world of business as possible.

This year's activities, with Mr. Brockgreitens and Mr. Sadich as sponsors, included a wide variety of events. Perhaps the most exciting were the field trip to Nieman-Marcus in Dallas, Texas, the trip to Hallmark Cards in Kansas City, and the state competitions in the Career Development Conference held at Lake of the Ozarks. Other activities were a field trip to a Tomboy warehouse, district competitions, DECA bookstore, and the annual Employer-Employee Banquet in the spring.

DECA meetings were held by strict parliamentary procedure and officers were elected as follows: Dave Griesinger, President; Rayma Cave, Vice-President; Debbie Stewart, Secretary; and Dale Wilcoxen, Treasurer.

A new approach to Scholar Quiz was taken this year at Wentzville. Instead of the traditional question and answer trials for applicants, a committee of teachers chose four team members and two alternates on the basis of their knowledge in certain areas of study. Jeff Riordan presided as captain of the team, with Debbie Turner, Dan Kenefick, and Mike Coryell as fellow team members. Alternates were Judy Vaughan and Mike Neal.

With sponsor Mr. Thompson, the team competed against St. Thomas Aquinas High and McCluer High in late January. The show was televised on January 26 on Channel 4. The school also acquired a video taping of the show so the student body could have the opportunity to view the excellent performance by the Wentzville team. Unfortunately the team lost to McCleur High by only four points--less than the total point value of one question.

Even though its name sounds strange, the Medicine Man Club's purpose was not. Mr. Takahashi, head of the mathematics department, formed a club of talented math students to prepare for the PSAT test. The club members took weekly preparatory exams and read a number of books to increase their vocabulary.

Mr. Takahashi hopes that this preparation which was done throughout the year, will raise PSAT scores and hopefully able students to qualify as semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition in their junior year.

The cheerleaders play a very important role in our sports program. Under the leadership of Mrs. Kelley, they drum up school spirit at sports events and assemblies with their skits, cheers, and chants. Their good luck pennies and candy help push the teams on to victories.

It's an honor to be a cheerleader, but it's hard work too. They earn their letters with sore muscles, sweat, and strained vocal cords. But not one of them would have it any other way!

The varsity football Indians had the best season of their history with a 7 win 3 loss record. They placed second in the Gateway Athletic Conference and many of the players received individual honors.

Mike Rackley set an all-time rushing record for the Conference with an astonishing 1306 yards. He was voted the most valuable player and best offensive player of the GAC and he also made the all-conference team. Greg Elzie, Dale Wilcoxen, Mike Coryell, Chris Kelley, Greg Thoroughman, and Dan Elfrink were the other Wentzville players who gained Conference honors.

The boys worked hard to make the Indian team an outstanding one. Under the excellent leadership of Coach Whitchurch, Coach Woodring, and Mr. Rinderknecht the team showed their opponents that the Indians wear war paint!!

how would you like to be chased by these guys?

This year Wentzville's cross country team broke the longtime record of only four wins. Don Hutson, Stan Hauk, Ray Tutterrow, Keith Longar, Jim Heeter, Mark Moore, Jeff Longar, and Alan Brook were the Harriers who were responsible for the 10-3-1 record.

Highlighting the season were the victories over Francis Howell and Troy, and the district meet. Ray and Don placed first and fifth respectively at the district meet, thus allowing both of them to compete in the regional meet.

As Coach Johnson said, "Everyone ran well, they won, and they got used to winning; therefore; they settled for nothing but the best."

another victory for '76

After weeks of hard practice, the Powder Puff football season was on its way. The first clash, between the Freshmen and the Sophomores, ended 6-0 with the Sophomores taking the honors. More excitement was in store when the Juniors faced the Seniors and downed them with the final score posted at 14-0. The final game of the season was a fight to the finish. The Sophomores proved to be tough competition for the Juniors, but the game ended 14-0 in favor of the Juniors. The Class of '76 carried off the season crown for the third year in a row.

win a few, lose a few . . .

At the end of the first game which saw Wentzville trounce Francis Howell 21-9, it looked like the girl's softball team was off to a winning season. But the next two games were heartbreakers; both were lost by only one run. So the season went--narrow losses and bad luck. The girls ended the season with a 3-7 record, having beaten Orchard Farm once and Francis Howell twice.

Sherri Simms, with a batting average of 467, led the team with 16 runs scored. Julie Burns assisted with 21 RBI's. Sherri Simms and Raenell Mackey were chosen to be on the second Gateway All-Star Team.

Hockey is probably the fastest moving team sport and is quickly growing in popularity and participation on both the professional and the amateur levels. This year the skaters from Wentzville were Dale Wilcoxen, Alan Brook, Dave Crow, and Steve Wade.

tom standley goes to state!

Wentzville's wrestling team, under the leadership of Coach Grider and athletic director Coach Hoekel, acquired a 6-5 record for their dual meet efforts. Also included in their fine record were their quad meet wins at Country Day and Clayton. The team competed in five tournaments, including District and Regionals. They placed 2nd at the Pacific Tournament, 3rd at Wentzville's, 5th at the Ladue Tournament, 3rd at District, and 4th at Regionals. Frank Martell was the only senior on the team, and he set an outstanding 22-1 record.

State competition was held at Columbia, Missouri on Feb. 22 & 23. Tom Standley was the only Wentzville wrestler eligible for the competition, after he placed first in the Regionals, and was honored as one of the top eight wrestlers in the state.

"The team did well," said Coach Hoekel, "and I am looking forward to a good season next year."

"Wentzville Captures Duschense Tournament" was just one of the many headlines seen in local newspapers.

Several of the team members received honors. These included Greg Elzie and Mike Rackley (1st team), and Chris Kelly (2nd team) who were chosen for the Little All-American Prep Teams. David Wallace and Mike Rackley (1st team), and Rackley (2nd team) made the GAC All Conference Teams, while Greg Thoroughman received honorable mention. Chris Kelley was named the Most Valuable Player in the GAC.

A new Wentzville record was set with 22 wins in one season. In spite of their many victories, the Indians were kept from taking their third Regional Title when they lost to the host, the Buchanan Trojans, although they placed first in the GAC.

It was a good season and Coach Scherrer praised the effort put forth by the team members.

Eight juniors and one senior made up the girl's varsity basketball team. Taking a look at their 13-5 record, one can see why Mr. Arnold, the team's coach, praised them so highly. Julie Burns was the team's top scorer, with over one hundred and thirty points to her credit.

The girls won the way to the championship game of Regionals, but unfortunately, Mark Twain High defeated them. It was a tough game and a hard loss to bear since they had come so close to the Regional title.

The Jr. Varsity team also faired well during the 1974-75 season. They posted an 8-2 record with Vicki Jones leading the team in baskets.

Coach Arnold was proud of the teams and their excellent records. Their cooperation and good sportsmanship were determining factors in their records.

This year the tennis team had some good players and good coaching, but their record wasn't quite as smashing as they were. They ended the season with a 3-10 record and ended 0-5 in their tournament. Terry Tyrrell was still swinging, though, when he placed first in the G.A.C. in first singles. He was also named Most Valuable Player for this year.

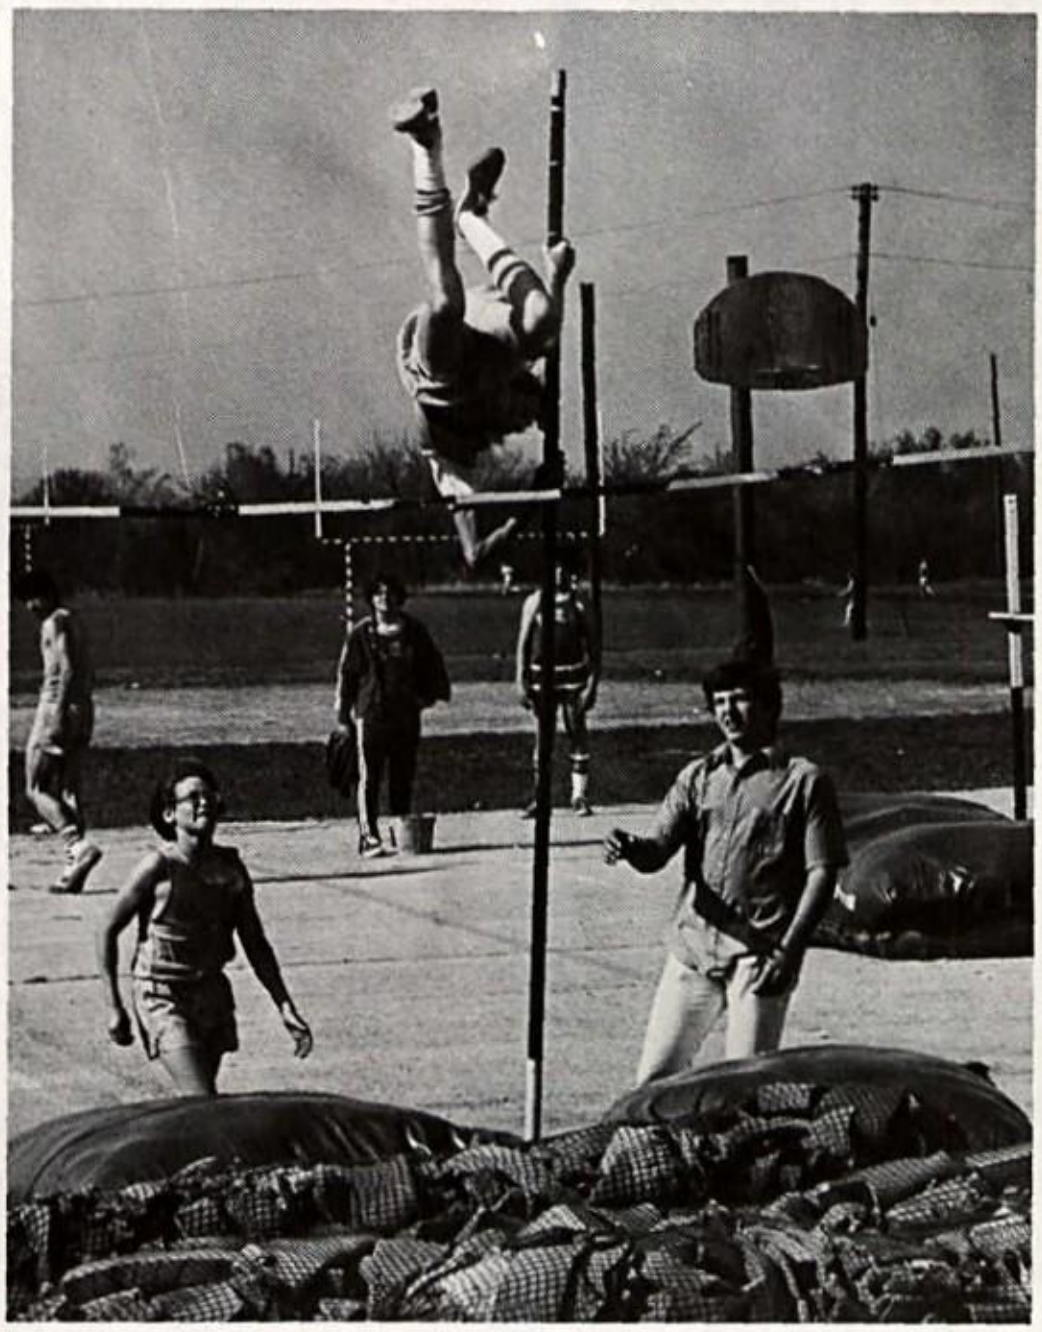
Bend and stretch!!!



Waiter, check please...

Although the '75 season was a tough one for the. WHS track team, two school records were broken, one in the two mile relay and the other in the triple jump.

This year's two mile relay team consisted of Ray Tutterow, Don Hutson, Wally Ehman, and Chris Kelley. They broke the old record of 8'43.3" by over seven seconds, posting an outstanding time of 8'36".

The triple jump record was broken by Jerry Tonioli, who exceeded the previous record of 38'9" and set a new one of 40'1.5".

The team, headed by Coach Swofford, placed fourth in their conference and went on to district competition.

girl's track

The WHS girl's track teams had a running start this season. The junior varsity team was undefeated and the varsity team lost only one meet. The varsity team placed fourth out of eleven schools in the Union Relays with two records being set. Teresa Walker posted 12.5 in the 100-yard dash and Angela Davenport set a 68.3 record in the 440 yard dash. Other records were set at various meets and they were as follows: Roberta Kohrs, 13.5 in the 80 yard hurdles; Bev Austin, 7:20 in the mile run; Cindy Perkins, Connie White, Teresa Walker, and Angela Davenport, 1:55.5 in the 880 relay and 55.7 in the 440 relay; Teresa Walker, 27.9 in the 220 yard dash; Julie Burns, 27'9" in the shot put and 4'7" in the high jump; Renee Hoelting, 15'3 1/2" in the long jump; and Vickie Jones, 189' in the softball throw. Teresa Walker was chosen as the Most Valuable Player of the year for her outstanding track performances.

Practice, practice, practice! The high school band was a busy organization this year. With marching season out of the way, the band had to settle into concert season and prepare for their numerous performances. They gave several concerts and participated in district contest (receiving a II rating), the Hazel Willerding Memorial Service, and graduation.

The band was fortunate to have two directors, Mr. Hansen, the band's previous director, and Mr. Burton, a woodwind specialist. Besides directing the band, they administered private lessons to band members and aided them in their solos and ensembles for contest.

soloists and ensembles

Contests brought a flourish of one ratings to WHS instrumental soloists and ensembles. The students had a possibility to participate in two contests (district and state); providing they received ones at district. Those instrumentalists receiving one ratings at district were: Pam Allen, the sax sextet and quartet, Dave Von Blohn, the brass sextet, the trumpet trio, Linda Garret, Craig Kilby, and the flute quartet. The majority of these also received one ratings at the state contest where the judging was more critical than at district.

Troubadors, a swing choir, was organized in the fall and appeared in various concerts during the year. They gave several performances at Christmas time; entertained various town clubs; performed in the Spring Concert; and ended the year with a performance at the National Honor Society Banquet. The group was supervised by Mr. Blegan and contained about twenty vocalists and instrumentals.

The Wentzville High School marching band under the direction of Mr. Hansen and Mr. Burton, and the field leadership of Pam Allen, brought home two trophies for their contest efforts--one for their street performance at Washington, Missouri and the other for their half-time show at Kirksville.

During the football season the band provided entertainment for the crowds at half-time. Their brisk routines relieved the sting of the cold weather with help from the Pom Pon girls and Majorettes.

pom pon girls

"Rock Around the Clock" was the theme song of the Pom Pon squad this year. With captain Linda Melton, the girls traveled to marching band contests and a St. Louis Spirits game where they performed with the high school band. The squad performed at various pep assemblies and half-time shows throughout the football and basketball seasons. One of the highlights of the year came at the February 14 basketball game when they performed a routine dressed as Valentine dolls.

With many practices behind them, the squad made their last performance at the February 21 basketball game. Dressed in various boy's sports gear, the girls performed an amusing routine to "Chicken Fat". It was a colorful season and well worth their efforts.

Cathy Weber and Bev Whitchurch added that something extra to the high school band. Their fire baton routines to "The Horse" hit it big with the football crowds. Included in their schedule were performances at home football games, pep assemblies, Homecoming Parade, and Wentzville Night at a St. Louis Spirits game.

They practiced many times before each performance, to make each one perfectly synchronized. Mr. Hansen and Mr. Burton, the high school band directors, were proud to have the girls as a part of the band. Their routines were great--practice makes perfect!

Wentzville's High School Choir had another fun-filled, successful year. Their activities were numerous, including a Christmas concert, a host concert for surrounding schools, district contest where they received a I rating, their annual tour, a spring concert, and to end the year, a performance at graduation.

Their tour took them to Illinois and Indiana for several wonderful days. They had the opportunity to hear a chamber choir from Illinois Weslyan University, visit Notre Dame, sing in a church, stay overnight with various families on the route and meet all kinds of interesting people.

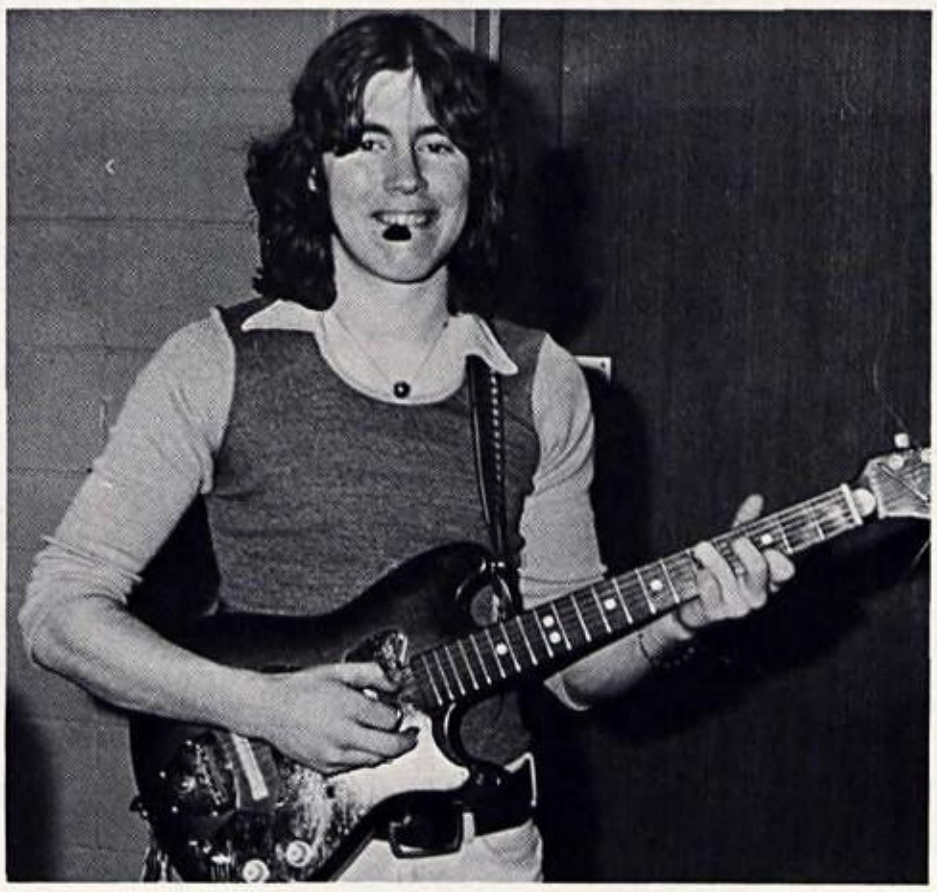
music

The jazz band was a new touch to the music department this year. Mr. Burton, a new addition to the Wentzville High music staff, organized the band.

The band practiced outside of the regular school day in two-hour sessions. It performed during the band chili supper in January, at a basketball game, for Wentzville clubs, and finally at contest in May.

The jazz style of music allowed the members of the ensemble to improvise on solos and just "do their own thing". It was fun, yet it improved each player's knowledge of the various types and styles of music at the same time.



scholastic and artist guild winners

Art students from Wentzville Junior-Senior High School participated in several art contests throughout the school year. The art students also went on field trips to places such as Washington University, Lindenwood College, and the Nelson Art Gallery in Kansas City, Mo.

The students' creations at WHS covered mediums such as pottery, sculpture (wood, clay, metal, stone, soft stuffed fabrics, and hand-dyed materials), prints, drawings, paintings, textiles of every variety and photography.

In spring the St. Charles, Mo. Artist Guild hosted an exhibit of student art for senior high students in the immediate area.

Wentzville High School received 11 awards in the mediums of watercolor, weaving, photography, and acrylic painting. Winners were: Cindy Arnold, Mary Ball, Barb Duren, Larry Hill, Michele Kessler, Kim Peterson, Faith Rockenstein, Linda Schmuke, and Tim Strange.

scholastic art contest

In January, WHS art students participated in the National Scholastic Art Contest sponsored by Scholastic Magazines. Out of 854 awards given by Scholastic this year, Wentzville took home 26, four of which were to go on to national competition.

Blue Ribbon Finalists were: Theresa Baker, Janice Bett, Debbie Christopher, and Misty Eaton. Gold Keys and Honorable Mentions were: Kim Peterson, Tom Noska, Calvin Meixsell, Mary Ball, Debbie Brown, Christy Dunn, Terry Bruce, Barb Duren, Paul Cohagen, Kathy Flynn, John Holtrup, DeDe Scarbrough, Michele Kessler, Peg McVicar, John Peters, Christine Peters, Tracy Wright, Mark Apple, Audrey Stewart, and Tim Strange.

THE EXHIBITION OF ARCHA EOLOGICAL FINDS OF THE PEOPLE'S REPU BLIC OF CHINA
Supported By The National Endowm t For The Humanities
APRIL 20 — JUNE 7

On April 30, 40 half-awake art students and two art teachers boarded a school bus at 5 a.m., with pillows, blankets, soda and snacks. Their destination was the Nelson Art Gallery in Kansas City. After a four hour ride while watching the sun rise, the students unloaded in K.C. and toured The Exhibition of Archaeological Finds of the Peoples Republic of China. The exhibition included 385 choice objects showing the progression of the Chinese culture. Ceramics, bronzes, calligraphy, sculpture, gold and silver utensils, jade and wood carvings, and textiles were on display. From there the students ate lunch in a nearby cafe and then loaded the bus for the ride home. After four hours on the bus and a lot of yelling and screaming, the bus finally arrived back at the high school with 40 very tired students and two dead teachers.

Their artwork covered medias in watercolor, acrylics, drawing, textiles, photography, soft and hard sculpture and ceramics. The critique was presented by Tom Schneider, a professional artist. The winners of the contest were: first prize winner, Janice Bett, for her watercolor pen-and-ink portrait titled "Billie"; second prize winner, Michele Kessler, for her unusual soft sculpture titled "Lady in Waiting"; and third prize winner, Bonnie Sachs, for her handbuilt ceramic pot. The honorable mentions were: Faith Rockenstein, Barb Duren, Tim Strange, Mary Treder, Mary Ball, Kim Peterson, Cinda Arnold and Michele Kessler. A contest was then held on May 17 of the final winners from six area high schools in which Janice Bett received second prize.

This year's annual spring play, staged on March 12, 13, and 14, was OEDIPUS THE KING. Produced by Mr. McAdam and directed by Mr. Weinz, the play was an overwhelming success.

The story of the play, written by Sophocles is this:

When Oedipus was born, an oracle foretold that he would slay his own father and marry his mother. To prevent this, his father, the King of Thebes, exposed the infant Oedipus to die on a mountainside. But the baby was rescued by a shepherd and brought up as the son of the ruler of Corinth, a neighboring state. When Oedipus was a grown man, he set off to verify his identity by consulting the oracle at Delphi. Learning there of the terrible prophecy, he resolved never to return home, as he believed his parents to be the king and queen of Corinth. At a crossroads he met another traveler, argued with him, and in a fit of temper, killed him. Calming his temper, Oedipus eventually came to the city of Thebes and found that its king had recently been killed in a foreign land. By correctly answering a riddle set to him by the Sphinx, a terrible creature who had been menacing the Thebans, Oedipus won the hand of the widowed queen of Thebes, Iocaste, and became king of Thebes himself.

Iocaste and Oedipus had four children--two daughters and two sons. Oedipus and Iocaste ruled Thebes in harmony for many years until a plague struck the city. Desperate, Oedipus consulted the oracle for advice and was told that the plague would not lift until the murderer of the former king of Thebes was found and punished. In anguish, Oedipus soon learned not only that the man he had killed at the crossroads was the king of Thebes, but also that the same man was his own long-lost father. The horrifying extent of the tragedy gradually unfolded as Oedipus realized that he had also, as the oracle had long ago predicted, married his own mother. Iocaste hanged herself when she learned the truth. Oedipus tore his eyes from his head and exiled himself forever from Thebes.

The Bonfire

After a week of suckers, 50's dress, blue & gold, wearing your clothes backwards, float building, and a bonfire and snake dance, the big day arrived--October 11th and Homecoming '74. The floats, marching band, majorettes, pom-pon girls, queen candidates, princesses, firetruck, and horses all made up the parade which wound its way through town and then back to the high school. The festivities continued that evening with the varsity football game between the Indians and the Fort Zumwalt Panthers. Unfortunately the Indians lost the game, but the half-time show brightened the spirits of the overflow crowd. The band, majorettes, and pom-pon girls all performed their routines. The results of the float competition was announced with the Sophomores winning 1st place. But the highlight of the evening came when Cindy Weis was crowned 1974's Homecoming Queen. Her court was made up of Janet Dockler, Janice Bett, Linda Jordan, Karen Houston, Junior Princess Patty Luttrell, and Sophomore Princess Lori Perkins. But that wasn't all. After the game a dance was sponsored by the Spirit Club in the high school gym. It was during the dance that Frank Martell was given the honor of being crowned Homecoming King. Other king candidates were Dan Elfrink, Don Hutson, Greg Elzie, and Chris Kelley.

This years DECA banquet was a great success. It was held at the Top of the Sevens in Clayton on April 19, under the direction of Mr. Bob Brockgreitens.

Our chapter president, Dave Griesinger, along with Susan Cox, took part as our Master and Mistress of ceremonies. The program was quite exceptional and somewhat touching as tears of joy and rememberance were shed throughout the presentation of awards.

Some of the finer awards presented were, Employer of the Year to Mrs. Jackie Dickherber, and Teacher of the Year to Mr. Tom Weinz. Woman of the Year was presented to Mrs. Hazel Willering and was accepted by her husband. Man of the Year was graciously accepted by Mr. Michael Sadich. Dave Griesinger was presented a scholarship from the Jeff Collett Career Development Fund. All who received awards were, of course, very deserving of them.

The Winter Sports Dance, sponsored by the Spirit Club, was a big success this year. A dress code improved the appearance of the dancers, and since all tickets were sold prior to the dance there was no waiting in line. Music for the dance was provided by a fine group, Nickels.

Midway through the dance Chris Kelley and Donna Wright were crowned King and Queen. Bev Heying, Linda Jordan, Don Hutson, and John Peters made up the royal court.

"how the world was made"
(cheyenne myth)

In the beginning there was nothing, and the Great Spirit lived in the void. He looked around him, but there was nothing to see. He listened, but there was nothing to hear. There was only the Great Spirit, alone in nothingness.

Because of the greatness of his power, the Great Spirit was not lonesome. His being was a Universe. But as he moved through the endless time of nothingness, it seemed to the Great Spirit that his power should be put to use. What good is power, he asked himself, if it is not used to make a world and people to live in it?

With his power, the Great Spirit created a great water, like a lake, but salty. Out of this salty water, the Great Spirit knew that he could bring all life that ever was to be. The lake itself was life, if the Great Spirit so commanded it. In the darkness of nothingness, he could feel the coolness of the water and taste on his lips the tang of the salt.

"There should be water beings," said the Great Spirit. And so it was. First the fish, swimming in the deep water, and then the mussels and snails and crawfish, lying on the sand and mud the Great Spirit had formed so his lake should have a bottom.

Let us also create something that lives on the water, the Great Spirit thought.

And so it was. For now there were snow geese, and mallards and teal and coots and terns and loons living and swimming about on the water's surface. The Great Spirit could hear the splashing of their feet and the flapping of their wings in the darkness.

I should like to see the things that have been created, the Great Spirit decided.

And, again, so it was. Light began to grow and spread, first white and bleached in the east, then golden and strong till it filled the middle of the sky and extended all around the horizon. The Great Spirit watched the light, and he saw the birds and fishes, and the shellfish lying on the bottom of the lake as the light showed them to him.

How beautiful it all is, the Great Spirit thought in his heart.

Then the snow goose paddled over to where she thought the Great Spirit was, in the space above the lake. "I cannot see You, but I know that you are there," the goose began. "Listen, Great Spirit. This is good water that You have made, on which we live, but birds are not like fish. Sometimes we get tired of swimming. Sometimes we would like to get out of the water."

"Then fly," said the Great Spirit, and he waved his arms, and all the water birds flew, skittering along the surface of the lake until they had speed enough to rise in the air. The skies were darkened with them.

The loon was the first to drop back to the surface of the lake. "Great Spirit," he said, You have made us sky and light to fly in, and You have made us water to swim in. It sounds ungrateful to want something else, yet still we do. When we are tired of swimming and tired of flying, we should like a dry solid place where we could walk and rest. Give us a place to build our nests, please, Great Spirit."

"So be it," answered the Great Spirit, "but to make such a place I must have your help, all of you. By myself, I have made four things: the water, the light, the sky air, and the peoples of the water. Now I must have help if I am to create more, for my power will only let me make four things by myself."

"Tell us how we can help you," said all the water peoples.

The Great Spirit stretched out his hand and beckoned. "Let the biggest and the swiftest try to find land first," he said.

"We are ready to try," they said, and each in his turn rose in the air and dove beneath the surface of the lake to look for the land they had requested; but each failed to find it.

At last there came the little coot, paddling across the surface of the water very quietly. "Great Spirit," the coot said softly, "when I put my head beneath the water, it seems to me that I see something there, far below. Perhaps I can swim down to it--I don't know. May I try, Great Spirit?"

"Little brother," said the Great Spirit, "no man can do more than his best and I have asked for the help of all the water peoples. Certainly you shall try. Try, little brother, and see what you can do.

The little coot put his head under the water and swam down and down and down. He was gone a long, long, long, long time. Then the Great Spirit and the water creatures could see a little dark spot beneath the water's surface, slowly rising toward them. It seemed as if they would never see the coot himself, but at last the spot began to have a shape. Still it rose and rose, and at last the Great Spirit and the water peoples could surely see who it was. The little coot was swimming up from the bottom of the salty lake.

When the coot reached the surface, the Great Spirit said, "Give me what you have brought." The little coot opened his beak so that a small ball of mud could fall from his tongue into the Great Spirit's hand, for when he wanted to he could become like a man.

"Go, little brother, and thank you," said the Great Spirit.

The Great Spirit rolled the ball of mud between the palms of his hands, and it began to grow larger, until there was almost too much mud for him to hold. He looked around for a place to put the mud, but there was nothing but water or air anywhere around him.

"Come and help me again, water peoples," the Great Spirit called. "I must put this mud somewhere. One of you must let me place it on his back."

All the fish and all the other water creatures came swimming to the Great Spirit, and he tried to find the right one to carry the mud. The mussels and snails and crawfish were too small, although they had solid backs, and they lived too deep in the water for the mud to rest on them. The fish were too narrow, and their back fins stuck up through the mud and cut it to pieces. Finally only one water person was left.

"Turtle," the Great Spirit asked, "do you think that you can help me?"

"I will try," replied the turtle. It swam over to the Great Spirit, and he piled the mud on its rounded back, until he had made a hill. Under the Great Spirit's hands the hill grew and spread and flattened out, until the turtle was hidden from sight.

And so it was, and so it is. The turtle and its descendants must walk very slowly, for they carry the whole weight of the whole world and all its peoples on their backs.

And so it is here at Wentzville High School that some students, invisible to the majority of the student body, seem to carry the weight of the school on their backs. It is the purpose of this award to recognize two of these students who, through four years of hard work, have accomplished much for themselves, but especially they have left a valuable legacy to those who will come after them.

The juniors of WHS went all out to create an outstanding prom for the '75 seniors. With the supervision of Mr. Anderson and Miss Boyer, they began in early spring planning decorations, menus and invitations. The theme chosen for this year was "Tropical Paradise." Both the prom and the after-prom party were held at the Mariner in Lake Saint Louis.

Before the prom, many couples were seen dining at such places as Sambo's, Noah's Ark and plush places throughout the area. It was quite a change to see one's peers dressed in tuxes and formals when used to their everyday garbs of jeans and sloppy shirts.

With Mr. Tom Weinz playing the part of announcer, Don Hutson and Bev Heying were crowned prom king and queen. Members of the court were Barb Duren, Tom Morrell, Darlene Mayers, John Meyers, Donna Wright and Dan Elfrink.

baccalaureate

This year's Baccalaureate service for the graduating class was held Sunday, May 18 in the high school gym. The guest speaker was Reverend Thomas Moyers, a 1967 graduate of Wentzville High School. Reverend Moyers also delivered the Invocation and the Benediction. The high school choir sang "Kyre" in Latin, and "The Glory of The Father".

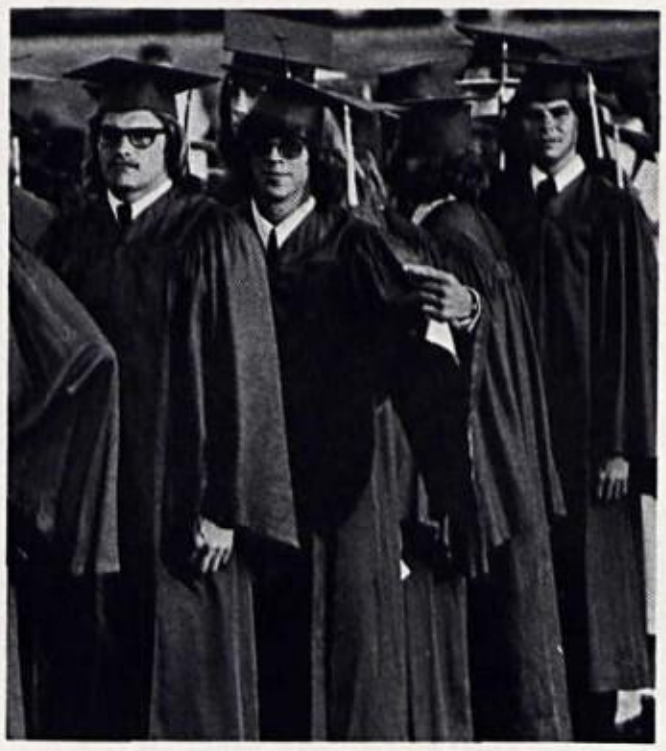
The Processional



The Benediction

Commencement exercises were held Thursday evening, May 22nd at Soby Field. For the first time in two years it didn't rain as 206 students dressed in blue and gold caps and gowns became allumni.

The Invocation and Benediction were given by Father James Grimaud. Music for the Processional and Recessional was provided by the high school Concert Band under the direction of Robert Hansen. The Choir, directed by John Blegan, sang "Battle Hymn of the Republic" with accompaniment from the band.

181 scholarships and academic honors were presented to the graduates by Superintendent, Clinton Maness. Diplomas were handed out by Board President, Richard Gross and Board Secretary, Adrienne Lissner, as Principal, Louis Newbold, presented the class.

Cindy Brown, with a 3.93 grade point average, delivered the valedictorian address. She told her fellow classmates to strive to achieve their goals, for true success is finding personal contentment. Cindy concluded her address with a quote from the book "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" by Richard Bach--"The Gull sees farthest who flies highest."

Diane Reininger, class Salutatorian, with a 3.87 grade point average, explained to her peers that each owed it to themselves to become the best person they can. "You never know how much you can accomplish until you try." She also emphasized that a person should never stop growing until the day they die. "I do my thing, you do your thing. I am not in this world to live up to your expectations, nor are you here to live up to mine," Diane concluded.

The highlight of the evening came when Greg Elzie, Class President, introduced Susan Clinton, Class Sponsor, as the guest speaker and presented her with a dozen red roses from the class. Miss Clinton thanked the class for the roses and the honor of speaking to them on the most important day of their school career. Miss Clinton said she had watched class members develop, mature and grow as they learned to accept failure and success. She then expressed the pride and happiness she felt for them on their graduation. She told the students to appreciate the people who have raised them. "Whatever you do after graduation always put your parents at the top of your list for consideration and love." Miss Clinton concluded her speech by telling the students she had been close to for two years to "Make others happy as you make yourself happy. Be honest with yourself and most of all be happy in whatever you choose to do."

Special recognition was given to Bobby Campbell, a teacher at WHS for many years, who was forced to retire because of illness. A blue blazer with the school's insignia was presented to his wife on his behalf.

Mr. Newbold ended the ceremonies by speaking to his last graduating class as high school principal. He told the graduates to open their minds and fly like a butterfly to discover the world, advance and create.

On May 27th at 7:30 p.m., 40 seniors and 4 chaperones left the high school on a chartered bus for a 9-day class trip to Florida. On route to Florida, they stopped at Rock City gardens Tennessee, and Atlanta and Tifton, Georgia. In Florida, they stopped at St. Augustine and stayed at Daytona Beach for a couple of days. They spent a day at Disney World and spent a night in Ocala and Panama City, Florida. On route home they passed through Mississippi and Louisiana where they spent another day in New Orleans. Their last night was spent in Memphis, Tennessee. On June 4th at 3:30 p.m. 44 very tired and worn out people unloaded the bus at the high school, each going their own different way, but having the memory of being a part of the "Class of 75".

A morning memorial service for Hazel Willerding was sponsored by the student council. The Jr.-Sr. high students were dismissed from class to attend the service which was held outside. The guest speaker was Reverend Kidwell. The band played "The Star Spangled Banner" during the raising of the flag, "Salvation is Created", and Doxology. A plaque was presented to Mr. Willerding by Debbie Turner, student council president. The plaque was inscribed:

In memory of Mrs. Hazel Willerding for 18 years of faithful dedicated service to the students of the Wentzville R-4 School District.
